

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A write wiring for writing information in an MTJ device is covered with a magnetic layer. The magnetic layer has a structure in which the growing direction of columnar grains is 30° or less from the normal-line 5 direction of sidewalls, a structure in which grains are deposited like a layer, or a structure in which grains are amorphously deposited.